

The Sagehen Dance
by James Shoulderblade

Hea'a naesóhtóhnó'eāā'e hehpeto étanéhe'xove naméšéme
Perhaps more than 60 years ago my grandfather

náhtatséhe'óhtseha tóhtoo'e tséxho'sóetsése mo'óhtávěšenéva'óhéasóho.
took me out on the prairie where sagehens were dancing.

Náhtáhévoo'séhaenoto tséohkéhetóhomó'hetsése. Naa tséstavóomono
He went to show them to me how they were dancing. And when I saw them, kahkése tséstáho'evonéhótótse. Tséhvé'hoomono close we crawled up to them. When I looked at them éhnéma'onéeóeo'o. Naa o'xe hoóma é'óhképo'o'ta.

they were in a circle. And on the opposite side there was a space open.

Táháóhe o'xe hoóma tsénéese
There on the opposite side (of) those standing, éhne'óhkéhoxovo'áhétse na'éstse, é'óhkeaméstósemóho hetsénoono.

one would run across, he would drag his wings.

E'óhkéháevavetsénooná'xeo'o.
They made a lot of noise with their feathers.

Néhéóhe tséhpo'o'tatse éstaohkené'e. Náháóhe o'xe
There in the open he would stand. There on the side tsénéese nonámé'tó'e éhne'óhkéhoxovo'áhétseo'o.

those standing, one by one they would run across.

E'óhkeaméstósemovo hetsénoonevóho.
They would drag their wings.

E'óhkenéšenéma'o'emá'senéhešéhoxovo'áhétseo'o. Naa
They did that until they finished crisscrossing. And óhnéhmé'éhnétseséstse éše'hóho é'óhkeéváhe'néohtseo'o.

when it came up, the sun, they would disperse.

E'óhkéséno'eohtseo'o váno'éšé'e. Náhnéheševóomoo'o
They went into the sagebrush. That's the way I saw them tséxho'sóévéose mo'óhtávěšenéva'óhéoseo'o.

when the sagehens danced.

Naa tséstshé'kéahéto ná'óhkéhetóhomó'heohe.
And when I was little I danced like that.

Ná'óhkenéhetóhomó'heohe. Ná'óhkeva'óhéosévóhomó'heohe,
I used to dance like that. I danced the prairie chicken dance, mo'óhtávéšenéva'óhéosévóhomó'hestótse.

the sagehen dance.

Ná'óhkemaenéhetaa'e vo'éstaneo'o, "Táaxa'e mo'óhtávéšenéva'óhéáso!"
People would say to me, "Let's see the sagehen!"

Ná'óhkeaséstóhomó'heohe. Nánéhešéhéne'ena
I would start dancing. That's the way I know tséohkéhešého'sóévóse mo'óhtávéšenéva'óhéoseo'o.

how the sagehens dance.

Hena'háanehe.
That's it.

NOTE: This text was tape recorded by Mr. Shoulderblade ca. 1979.